These bookings and others like them continue to establish THE PEKING ACROBATS as a truly internationally renowned ensemble, performing for widely varied audiences the world over.

THE PEKING ACROBATS ability to perform the astounding is rooted in centuries of Chinese history and folk art. Records of acrobatic acts can be found as early as the Ch'in Dynasty (221 B.C. - 207 B.C.). In fact, the name China is actually derived from the Ch'in Dynasty. According to Fu Qifeng, author of Chinese Acrobatics Through the Ages, acrobatics originated from the people's daily life, drawing from their experiences in work, war, and sacrificial rites. During the Warring States Period, acrobatics became widespread. It was believed that practicing acrobatics could steal people's will, increase their physical strength and the accuracy of their movements.

During the Han Dynasty (207 B.C. - 220 A.D.), acrobatics flourished, and the wide variety of juggling, tumbling, and magic acts came to be known as the "Hundred Entertainments." It was at this time, according to Fu Qifeng, that Emperor Wu Di of the Han Dynasty presented the first grand acrobatic performance at the Imperial Court.

THE PEKING ACROBATS have also been expanding their reach in the Corporate and Special Events milieu, performing for such prestigious clients as Johnson & Johnson Medical in Beijing, China; Unisys Corporation in Macau, China; the Smithsonian Institute Associates in Washington, DC; the International Monetary Convention in Beijing, China; Ferrari/Maserati of Beverly Hills, California; Lucent Technologies and Pepsi-Cola in Hawaii. In addition to these engagements, they have been the featured entertainment at private events at such prestigious venues as the Museum of Natural History in New York City and the Bellagio Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas, Nevada, among many others. These private performances are a logical outgrowth of the tradition of Chinese acrobatics, which began centuries ago as entertainments designed to impress Heads of State in ancient times.

The Emperor Wu Di invited a number of important foreign dignitaries, thus making this performance the first time in Chinese history that acrobatic art was presented for diplomatic purposes. The foreign guests were so impressed by what they saw that they agreed to enter into military alliances with the Han Emperor.

In China today, professional acrobatic troupes have many outlets for showcasing their talents. Some appear on Chinese television shows as the broadcast industry in China has expanded to include several television channels featuring diverse programming. Some travel throughout China bringing their own unique costumes, stage props, and acrobatic styles to factories, villages, army units, remote areas, and frontier outposts. Still others have formed joint ventures with Theme Parks as an economically thriving China has fostered the growth of their own family entertainment industry, where they perform seasonally as part of the theme park's entertainment, much like here in the U.S. As time goes by, it is telling that the Chinese Acrobatic tradition just gets stronger, due to the continued innovation of the artists and the endless enthusiasm from their adoring public.

THE PEKING ACROBATS®

GENERAL PRESS RELEASE - NORTH AMERICAN TOUR 2010

Daring maneuvers atop a precarious pagoda of chairs...treacherous wire walking...a trick cycling kaleidoscope of magnificent movement...powerful precision tumbling, somersaulting and gymnastics...amazing displays of contortion, flexibility and control...astonishing foot juggling dexterity...incredible balancing feats showcasing tremendous skill and ability...extraordinary exhibits of agility and grace...live musicians displaying their talents by skillfully playing traditional Chinese instruments....high-tech special effects and all the excitement and festive pageantry creating an atmosphere like that of a Chinese Carnival!! All of this is just a part of the magnificent show offered by THE PEKING ACROBATS from the People's Republic of China. Last year, this engaging troupe marked its twenty-third North American tour following sold-out headline Theatre Tours from 1986 - 2009.

Because of the unusual and difficult nature of the feats involved, high honor is conferred upon those skilled enough to become acrobats; an acrobat can be considered the Chinese equivalent of an American opera star. In China there are approximately 100,000 acrobats studying at schools dedicated to the art. After ten or eleven years of extensive tutoring, often beginning as early as age 5 or 6, the student will join a professional troupe, usually a citywide organization that draws its members regionally. Only the best acrobats find themselves members of an elite world-touring troupe such as THE PEKING ACROBATS. For centuries, dating back to the Ch'in Dynasty (221 B.C. - 207 B.C.), Chinese acrobats have continued to perfect an evolving folk art form. Tradition demands that each generation of acrobats add its own improvements and embellishments.

Each new movement or action takes many years to practice and perfect. Those who have seen THE PEKING ACROBATS on any of their previous tours can be assured that they will see new, exciting acts and new twists to their old favorites! It is telling that the Chinese Acrobatic tradition just gets stronger, due to the continued innovation of the artists and the endless enthusiasm from their adoring public.

THE PEKING ACROBATS have built a tremendous reputation over the years, performing not only on stages around the globe, but also on many popular television shows, including NICKELODEON'S UNFABULOUS and ELLEN'S REALLY BIG SHOW, hosted by day-time talk show host and actress, Ellen DeGeneres. They have performed with world-famous Symphony Orchestras including the San Francisco Symphony, the Atlanta Symphony, and the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra. They have performed for prestigious Corporations around the world, including Unisys, Ferrari/Maserati of Beverly Hills and the International Monetary Convention. They have performed five consecutive European tours in recent years, visiting such countries as Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, and the Netherlands. They have been featured in star-studded feature films, including Steven Soderbergh's Ocean's 11. Their incredible popularity and longevity as a performing entity is a testament to the awesome power of their performances. Their renown continues to grow with each passing year, refining their unique brand of ancient artistry by inspiring crowds of all ages, from all walks of life, performance by performance.

A performance by THE PEKING ACROBATS, therefore, brings with it the opportunity to view the epitome of a rich and ancient folk art tradition in addition to the pageantry and spectacle of the modern Chinese Theatrical Circus. As the Seattle Times has reported: "Nearly everything the Peking Acrobats did last night was amazing - and stunning, and breathtaking and WOW!" and Chris Pasles of the Los Angeles Times stated: "The Peking Acrobats regularly passed from the seemingly impossible to the virtually unbelievable."

THE PEKING ACROBATS have performed the world over to standing ovations and packed houses, including such far-reaching corners of the globe as Australia, Europe, throughout the Americas, the Middle East, Africa and numerous Asian countries. Now, 2,000 years of tradition, perfection and spectacle comes to _____ (city) _____ - are you ready to be amazed?
